THE LAST DRUMMER.

After the passage of the Beresina by Marshal Victor, who, on the evening of the 28th of November, 1812, had lost so heavily in attacking the bridges, the fragments of the French army, having twice dispersed the Russian bands, were resting for a little in the suburbs of Smorgoni.

Two officers on horseback wrapped in their cloaks, with heads bent low, were passing along the road.

"You say, colonel, that there are many French in the rear in spite of the butchery at the bridges?"

"There are thousands—stragglers of every corps lying in the snow unarmed."

"You should have rallied them."

"I could not carry 10,000 men in my holsters."

True. But you should have sounded the alarm."

"The alarm—for dead men!"

There was a moment of silence.

"You know that he will review the Third tomorrow. Ney charged me to inform you. You will head the column."

The colonel uttered a formidable laugh.

"A review of the Third corps!"

He turned toward the general, who appeared impassive, and his gayety at once subsided.

"You are jesting."

"Colonel Champeaux!"

"By the sword of Jehovah," cried the colonel, "there is but one emperor who can review those men!"

He lifted his arm in the darkness, with a vague gesture toward heaven.

"A review," he went on, "but it will be a battalion review. The Third corps numbered 35,000 infantrymen and 2400 cavalrymen at the opening of the campaign. It had 10,000, all told, on quitting Moscow. Do you know how many yet remain?"

He did not wait for the response.

"There remain 130. I say nothing of the horses. They have been digested. I—Colonel Champeaux—do you know how many men I myself have?"

"How many?"

"Seven—the remnant of a fine regiment of grenadiers."

The general shuddered, and his horse made a movement.

"How many wounded?"

"Six."

"Officers?"

"One and the sole effective. I am he."

And the colonel burst out laughing. It seemed a "good one."

"Very well," said the general. "This is the fourth. Tomorrow at 9 o'clock the Third corps must be assembled. You must find these survivors."

The colonel interrupted violently:

"Look out for an army corps—in this desert!"

"Bah!" said the general. "The emperor wishes it. Understand, Champeaux, the emperor!"

And he plunged into the darkness.

Champeaux, erect amidst the snow, reflected a moment, snapped his jaws together and turned back toward the plain.

"The emperor"—

This luminous word he passed again and again mechanically before his imagination.

"The emperor— If it's the emperor—All the same if it is he"—

The French army was encamped in the midst of an immense circle of wagons and tethered horses—that is to say, in disorder. Bands of stragglers and wounded—the straying of the former and the creeping pace of the latter directed by chance—had assembled around thousands of fires, which they fed with rotted planks, tops of caissons, saddle pads and broken wheels. Everywhere was a shoreless sea of phantoms, with here and there looming in the midst of it a miserable shelter.

From time to time the heavy, immense, indefinable breadth of the storm swept by, and again a terrific detonation was heard—a caisson of shells exploding.

Champeaux, savage and irresolute, made his way through the group of shadows, cursed by those whose despondent reveries he disturbed.

"A review—an imperial review! Tomorrow! These carrion have no longer any uniform! How are corps and regiments to be recognized? Their only raiment is wounds, saddle cloths, horse blankets. Find the different battalions if you can!"

He grasped a shoulder at hazard.

"What regiment?"

The man was stretched out in sleep. He opened one eye; then closed it heavily.

Champeaux drew his saber a little way from its scabboard, entered the edge of the fire, the flames licking his tall boots, and turned toward the men, whose blackened hands and arms were extended toward the coals, dripping as they thawed. They did not so much as look at him, but Champeaux was already roaring out the order of the emperor. Immediately, when this name was pronounced, a few heads were lifted—the oldest—and 12 cavalrymen of the Third corps came and ranged themselves behind the colonel.

"Have you your horses?"

The soldiers began to laugh softly in the manner of young girls.

"Well, we will do without them," said the colonel. "March!"

He went on. He and his men boldly entered the fire circles. Champeaux delivered the emperor's orders, which, in proportion as the difficulties increased, he magnified by dint of vociferation, until it became a sort of proclamation to the troops. This reminder of Napoleon drew 30 men from the bivouac fires, of whom eight were grenadiers.

"Fall in!" said the colonel.

As he moved forward he stumbled upon the recumbent forms of men imbedded in the ice. Then all would bend down and would loosen these stiffened forms, wrenching them from the ground as though they were so many sticks of timber. They planted them upright, and Champeaux, with a sort of congestive exultation, brawled out his chant:

"Blockheads! It's for the emperor"—

These words straightened them up as if Murat himself had grabbed them by the scruff of the neck, and they set forth laughing. After four hours the effective strength of the Third corps reached 60 men.

Toward midnight recruiting became difficult. A black, bitter cold that would have frozen Vesuvius or the four ideas of a fever ridden brain laid the men in heaps by the bivouac fires, even among the glowing embers, rolled, massed together, curled up like balls, heads and limbs confounded. To get them on their feet Champeaux, who now seemed transfigured, promised them the cross! Twenty-nine arose. They were young; they were of the last conscription.

"Vive l'Autre!" (a nickname for Napeleon, "Long live the Other!") cried Champeaux. "Forward!"

But his horse would not budge. Prophetic, shuddering, steaming, its neck extended, its hoofs as if glued to the soil, it stood over the body of a sleeper, snorting and nibbling at the leather trappings.

"Who goes there?" growled Champeaux, bending so low that he seemed to be hanging from his saddle.

"No one goes," said one of the grenadiers of his following. "It's the skeleton of an artilleryman."

The man who lay there did not budge. The colonel drew his saber. Then a rugged head emerged from a mask of snow, and two clear eyes surveyed Champeaux's pelisse.

"What do you want with me?"

"Get up!"

The man grew angry. He believed they were joking.

"You there, take care—one step more and I'll run you through the gullet, colonel though you be!"

He said this at a single breath. Then, panting like a dumb brute, he fell back, exposing his body to view, from which a leg had been severed close to the trunk.

Champeaux made the round of two other bivouacs, and toward 3 o'clock the troop numbered 125 men, he despaired of finding the five others.

"We will return," he said.

They set out, but on the way the colonel found a light infantryman beating his feet together between the shafts of a wagon and scraping the ice from a piece of a horse's leg.

"Follow us!" shouted the troop.

"I am not to be disturbed; I am dining," answered the specter.

Champeaux raised one of his pistols, and the soldier sprang aside.

"Anyhow, let me get my drum!"

Champeaux did not stop him. He was seized with an idea which struck him to the very soul. He laid hold of the man.

"You are a drummer?"

"Yes."

He was a little fellow, without a beard, slender, with hair like a child's.

"And you have kept your drum?"

"Here it is," said the conscript. "Why not! Since I am a drummer—I have my drum. If I hadn't my drum"—

Champeaux seized him, put him in the saddle, kissed him on both cheeks, as he would a woman. Alone in the midst of that agonized army, which had abandoned its arms and insignia, this child, who had guarded his drum, appeared to him a prodigy.

"Forward!"

They returned to the plain and sheltered themselves under the wagons. Champeaux watched until morning.

Toward 8 o'clock Napoleon appeared. He had just inspected certain corps, and had dictated the Twenty-ninth Bulletin, by which France was startled and dumfounded. Ney was at his side. Ledru des Essarts came in search of Champeaux.

"Come," said he.

The emperor was on a slight eminence. The Third corps, drawn up four files deep, was posted 100 yards away.

Champeaux, who was mounted, drew his saber.

"Attention, my fine fellows," he said in a subdued voice. "The Other is gazing at you! Forward! Limber your legs! Tramp, I say! Make believe you are an army! Marrrche!"

At once, more impetuous than a hunter's pack in full cry, with greater impulse, more ringing, more sonorous than the vanished bugles of the eutire corps, there burst forth a terrible rann-plann-plann!—and those 125 men, relics of the superb 38,000 of Elkingen, defiled before the cold gaze of the emperor.

Pann-rrrann! plann-plann! chanted the drumsticks.

Four files front, accurate of step, elbows touching, heads thrown back, those human remnants crossed a corner of the plain, to the consecrated roll of the drum! Champeaux, with his saber aloft as at the Carrousel, rode behind the little drummer. This tragic parade, amid the snow, amid unequaled suffering, before a stupefied army, so shocked the stern old marshal that—beside the impassive Napoleon—his knees trembled under him. They were without uniforms, those 125, but they had the noble mien of martyrs. Even the drummer was known as such only by the tragic fury of his rataplan!

Pann! pann! sounded the drum. Plann! plann!

At the head, as directed by the regulations, there were eight Grenadiers of the Guard, with chimerical faces, some topped with soiled caps, stained with the smoke of the battle and bivouac; others, a six months' beard on their cheeks, with their heads thrust into tall cylinders of fur. And all were old, their bodies barred with solemn cicatrices.

Next came 68 light infantrymen, old like the grenadiers, one-third of them in black gaiters and the others shod with strips of leather.

"Steady! Beware the emperor!" cried Champeaux.

Rrrann! plann! plann!—pataplann! plann! plann!

Following, bareheaded, were two soldiers of the engineering corps, with neither saber nor cartridge boxes, frightfully slashed by the Cossacks, but still carrying their spades.

Then appeared a disordered cavalry, without horses, hobbling, limping along, but so proudly courageous that they would have retraced their steps on the instant and have reconquered the Russians; eight cuirassiers, without cuirasses, lifting toward the emperor their seamed faces, the fur bands of their helmets tightened about their necks, the most of them clad in Russian pelisses, which they had won by dint of sword play. One, an enormous fellow, had no trousers, and had tied a pair of blue saddle cloths about his thighs. He marched with bare ankles through the snow. Beside him trailed a dismounted grenadier, with a cap that had been shorn by musket balls, hairless, plaqueless, without cordon or plume.

Bravely, drumsticks, rattle away! And you, drummer, roll, roll, for the tattered Pandours of love!

Rrrann! rrrann!—pataplann!

Last, approached in four close lines, the artillerymen, in number 15, cannoneers of Piedmont, with neither white looped cordons nor drumsticks; 12 dragoons, riddled with grapeshot, in bloody coats that once were green, with tigerskin casques; and 20 crack hussars, in loose trousers blackened with powder and rent with lance thrusts, their silver dolmans flapping in formless tatters.

Rrrann! rrrataplann! Beat with your might; beat again, spare not, O drummer of Tabor! O death's drummer! Pataplann! rrrataplann! plaum! plaum! "Don't look like sausages!" said Champeaux. "Yonder is the emperor!"

Napoleon, in fact, erect upon his steed, unmoved and fatal as destiny, was awaiting them.

This knot of heroes, one of the few that remained of that great epic, defiled past him, their eyes turned toward his face. The drummer continued through the plain to beat his drum; the pitiful battalion followed him; and as if muffled in funeral crape, the rolling of the drum reverberated against the rigid walls of that imperial soul; already distant, becoming vaguer and vaguer, dying upon the ear, it seemed to the emperor like the tolling of brazen tongues, announcing a foregone conclusion, the supreme alarm, the irremediable knell of his puissant armies.—Translated from the French for Short Stories.

CUBA WILL BE FREE.

So long as there was an apparent purpose to quell insurrection against Spanish authority in Cuba, the outside world was supposed to take no interest, at least no part, in a national family or internal quarrel. So long as the war that seemed to be necessary between Spain and the insurgent Cubans was conducted on the basis of what is recognized as civilized warfare, there was but little partisan criticism, however much the fact of any kind of war might be deplored. That there was sympathy with the Cubans in their efforts for a free Republican form of government will not be denied; but no one who had any regard for the comity of national authority over a nation's subjects in any of its colonies had any thought of armed interference to prevent Spain from exercising proper authority over her Cuban subjects.

She sent one of her ablest, bravest and most conscientious and most competent soldiers to suppress the formidable opposition to the authority of the Spanish crown. This man was General Martinez Campos. If there is anything humane in war (and we believe there is) he conducted his warfare on the plan or idea that may be considered justifiable—if war is ever justifiable. He was no coward and no butcher. While always faithful to his sovereign he always had regard for the amenities or civilities of war. But he has thus far failed to crush the spirit of Republicanism which perhaps has gathered some of its virility and contagion from the close proximity of Cuba to the United States. The world stood aloof and watched the contest between the organized power of Spain to maintain its supremacy, and the people of that beautiful, tropical island to secure their freedom and have a place among the peoples of the world, and prove that they are fit to govern themselves in such a way as shall conduce to the greatest substantial prosperity and happiness of them all.

Now, since General Campos has failed to accomplish by savagery, what has been expected of him, he is replaced by General Weyler who does not lack more of personal courage, perhaps, than the man he supersedes but who is said to be more of a butcher, and is expected to accomplish by butchery what Campos could not accomplish by the means of what is recognized as civilized warfare.

But the days of Nero, of St. Bartholamew and of Robespierre have gone by. Victories are not won nor counted by human bodies devoured by wild animals, nor sizzling at the stake, nor by human heads bounding from the guillotine's knife. And from the day when Spain begins any of these modes of warfare, the date of Cuba's freedom begins, and the obliteration of Spain from among the civilized governments of the earth begins also.

In this age the warfare of the soldier cannot be superseded by the atrocities of the butcher.

It looks as though Cuba will be free and she will owe her freedom to the cruelties and not to the nourishing of her mother.

"AND STILL THEY COME."

The following figures show that notwithstanding the armies of tramps with which the country is infested, and the slow condition of our industries, foreigners still keep thronging to our shores. "During the past year 370,605 immigrants comprised the arrivals at the port of New York, about nine-tenths of the number of all who came to this country. The males outnumbered the females by 41,372, and 42,942 could neither read nor write. The percentage of the illiterate is exceptionally large. It is interesting to note the character of distribution of these home builders. The North Atlantic States received 182,040, the South Atlantic States 36,730, the North Central 36,730, the South Central 2,451, while the Western States had only 5,587. The West has evidently lost favor with European immigrants, a matter doubtless due to stories of bad crops and other influences, but why the Southern States should be passed over is a problem. There at least is a comparatively new country, opportunities not subject to impairments that come in droughts, cyclones and irregular seasons, and a climate that makes up many deficiencies."

The recently fixed requirements as fixed by Judge Pryor, of New York, will prevent many of these people from participating in the debauching of the ballot box and this will modify to a certain extent the evil of their coming—that is, of those who are ignorant of our language and of our form of government. It is a pity, however, that the restrictions are not greater upon those who have no regard for our welfare, but like Pharaoh's lean kine come only to absorb our substance.

THE SOCIETY gossips, especially of the female members, are just now spending their afternoons and evenings in discussing and commenting on the approaching marriage of Ex-President Harrison and Mrs. Dimmick, his late wife's niece. General Harrison is an eminently respectable gentleman and Mrs. Dimmick is an equally estimable lady. There is no reason in the world why they should not enter the married relation. They are both of sufficiently mature years and experience to know what they are doing. They are acquainted with each other and have been for years. It is not a matrimonial hunt or speculation with either of them. They evidently know what they are about to do. Both are eminently respectable and worthy, and their proposed marriage is nobody's business. So let the gossips keep still and allow the worthy couple to assume their new and happy relation—as we hope it will be—in peace.

FOR THE first time since the war New Jersey is Republican in the legislature and executive branches of the government and the combined or separate majorities is overwhelming. Two causes are with good reason assigned as bringing about this result. The first is that the Democratic leaders brought the party into disrepute by making it responsible for continuing the disreputable race track and other forms of gambling and debauchery which would curse any party that would encourage them. The second reason assigned is the growth in manufactures in many of the cities in the state and where there are large manufacturing establishments there is always protection and protection breeds Republicanism.

CONGRESSMAN WELLINGTON of Maryland, who is known to a number of Franklin county people near the Maryland border, will be Maryland's U. S. Senator to succeed Senator Gibson of Annapolis. It is something new to have a Republican U. S. Senator from Maryland, and it would not have been so if Senator Gorman, Maryland's Democratic boss, had been the right kind of a Democrat. It remains to be tested whether Maryland is to remain in the Republican register of states. A majority of Maryland's voters are Democrats and they will remain so if the party deserves their allegiance and support.

THE NEXT Democratic National Convention will be held in Chicago, July 7. Other cities wanted the convention but Chicago outbid them.

General Thomas Ewing Killed.

On Monday General "Tom" Ewing, ex-member of congress from Ohio was fatally injured by a trolley car in New York city. He had left home, intending to go town by the elevated road. As he reached Third avenue a cable car passed and he stepped directly behind it, not noticing that one from the opposite direction was right upon him. The corner of the car struck him and threw him back several yards. He landed on his head. The general was carried to his home. General Ewing had been practising law in New York for some time. He was born in Lancaster, Ohio, in 1829, and was admitted to the bar in Cincinnati in 1856. He was in Kansas during the Free Soil struggles, and when that state was admitted to the Union he was appointed Chief Justice of its Supreme Court, but resigned and entered the army in 1861 as Colonel of the 11th Kansas infantry. He gradually ross in rank until he became Major General and commanded the Department of the Missouri.

He went to Washington in 1865 as the assistant of Ex-Secretary of the Interior Browning. He went back to Ohio in 1870 and entered politics. He was a member of Congress from 1877 to 1881 and in 1879 ran for Governor on the Democratic ticket, but was defeated. In 1881 he went to New York to practice law. For many years he was president of the Ohio Society there. He was at one time counsel to the Building Department, which position he resigned on January 1 last. General Ewing has five children, all grown. Mrs. Ewing is still living.

Promises Worth Accepting.

In 1896—the 70th year of its publication—The Youth's Companion promises more varied attractions for its readers than ever before, and the promises of this old favorite with the public are worth accepting, for they are always more than fulfilled.

Articles will be given from three Cabinet Ministers, a feature which has never been equalled by any other publication; the Princess Louise, daughter of Queen; Victoria; the Lord Chief Justice of England; Four Admirals; Speaker Reed and Justin McCarthy, the famous homeruler, are among the prominent names on the list.

Among other announcements are four Serial Stories, each of which will make a good-sized book when completed; a series of personal articles describing "How I Served My Apprenticeship," by Maj.-Gen. Nelson A. Miles; Andrew Carnegie, Frank Stockton and others; fascinating stories of travel, and the usual carefully prepared "departments" which every Companion reader enjoys.

Send $1.75, the price of The Companion for one year, and enjoy each week the fulfilment of the promises of the paper for 1896.

To all of its new subscriber, and to all those renewing their subscription, The Companion sends a very handsome Calendar lithographed in nine colors, each of four pages, containing a picture representing one of the seasons of the year. Address The Youth's Companion, 195 Columbus Avenue, Boston, Mass.

TOWN AND TOWNSHIP.

The Events of the County as Chronicled by "Review" Correspondents—Summary of the Week's News.

WILLIAMSON.

John Barnhart is on the sick list.

Mrs. S. Z. Hawbecker is visiting friends in West Virginia.

S. A. Myers has resigned his position as butter maker for the Cumberland Valley creamery company of Williamson. Mr. Myers has had five years experience in butter making and has proved himself capable of handling machinery to the best advantage. He leaves the factory with many friends and all join in best wishes for his future business, whatever it may be. The Farmers Cooperative creamery is about completed and will be ready for the machinery soon.

The firm of Peckman and Miller, dealers in merchandise, is doing a good business considering the times.

UPPER PATH VALLEY.

A fall of "the beautiful" occurred Sunday.

Miss Mame Reed, of Middle Spring, is visiting friends and relatives in the valley.

Stephen Widney had the misfortune one day last week to have the thums of his right hand crushed while feeding a corn chopper. Dr. Shope of Dry Run amputated the injured member.

It is rumored that $1500 has been offered the Tuscarora Valley railroad as an inducement to have the road extended to Rhone's Mill, and if the building of the road is assured more will be offered.

A. C. Clugston and S. A. Rutter are engaged in cutting and shipping walnut. The large logs are shipped whole and the small logs are converted into lumber. Already they have a large quantity cut in this and Tuscarora Valley.

The timber company of near Bellefonte, Centre county, who lately purchased the timber on the farm formerly owned by the Ryder heirs have arrived, set up their machinery and begun operation. Other mills in the valley are cutting a large quantity of lumber which will be shipped via the Tuscarora Valley railroad.

The Democrats of Dry Run district, Fannett township, met in caucus at Dry Run Saturday and nominated the following ticket: For constable, N. W. Rouse; supervisor, Geo. Shetler; school director, William Wolff; auditor, William Pilgrim; assessor, Amos Piper; township clerk, William Barclay; judge of election, Edward Holden; inspector, William Shoop.

A number of young ladies and gentlemen from Concord and vicinity gathered at the home of Miss Kate Rutter on last Tuesday evening; the evening was spent in amusing games until a late hour when all departed well pleased.

FANNETTSBURG.

It has been some time since your correspondent has written you any news from this quaint old town, the town of your boyhood days. Fannettsburg seems to be the sleeping town of Franklin county as far as manufacturing and other industries are concerned, but it is not sleeping as to hospitality, you know that yourself. News is scarce, that is news of importance that goes to make up a live newspaper like the REVIEW.

I see by the roll books of some of our teachers the number of pupils who have been in attendance every day during the third month of the school term: Intermediate, Fannettsburg, Miss Mame Kegerreis teacher, pupils present every day during third month; Annie Markley, Gertie Lessig, Maud Miller, Mabel Umbrell, Maud Kegerreis, Nellie Cowan, Jessie Horton, Willie Morrow, Roy Kegerreis, Robt. Everett, Charlie Horton, Benj. Haiston, Archie Cowan, Samuel Gamble; fifteen in all. Miss Ada Seibert, teacher at Flickinger's school, daughter of J. B. Seibert, Esq., shows for the same month these present every day, Zilda Gury, Harry Stenger, Crouse Gury, Archie Burk, Victor Burk. Fannettsburg grammar school, Thomas C. Park, teacher; these were present every day during the same month, Bertie Kegerreis, Jennie McAllen, Viola Miller, Mattie Noble, Nellie Park, Nellie Seibert, Ruth West, Archie Alexander, Charley Nusbaum, James Nusbaum, Lillie Seibert, Tillie Everett, Daniel Haiston. During the fourth month ending January 17, 1896, there were present, Jennie McAllen, Lucy Noble, Nellie Park, Lillie Seibert, Nellie Seibert, Ruth West, Charlie Nusbaum.

The Fannettsburg Methodist Sabbath school has elected the following officers for the year 1896: Superintendent, R. M. Miller; assistant superintendent, Jas. H. Irvin; lady superintendent, Miss Mary Markey; assistant secretary, Miss Emma Everett; secretary, William Mort; librarians, Miss Maggie Lessig, Miss Mame Miller; treasurer, Harry D. Kuhn; assistant treasurer, Charles C. Sholtz; organists, Miss Emma Everett, Miss Edith Edmondson.—The Presbyterian school re-elected J. B. Seibert, superintendent; Thomas Adams and Carson Skinner secretaries and R. B. Davis, treasurer.—The Reformed school elected William H. Kegerreis superintendent of their school, This has been a good choice as well as a good man for the place and will help build up the school.

ST. THOMAS.

Never since its institution, did St. Thomas Castle, No. 309 Knights of the Golden Eagle seem so much like an organization of chivalry as on Friday evening, when the belted Knights appeared before a large audience of specially invited guests of the community, and elsewhere in the county, in the town hall, upon the interesting occasion of a public installation of the recently elected officers of the Castle, who shall preside over its deliberations and business for the ensuing term of six months.

Early in the evening the village was all agog, because it was well known that frequent rehearsals of the program, by the Sir Knights, for which the energetic committee of arrangements was responsible, made it certain that the public entertainment, connected with the installation ceremonies, would be no retrogression, but rather an improvement over their past popular musical entertainments, when worthy bards sang, in minstrel lays, the epic story of Knighthood's dauntless deeds.

The following program was pleasingly rendered:

1. Music—Overture—"Gleanings," Orchestra.
2. Opening of Castle Opening Ode.
3. Music—"Point Breeze," - - Orchestra.
4. Address of welcome, Rev. H. N. Bassler.
5. Installation of officers.
6. Quartet—
   "The Girl who sat down on my hat," Maxheimer, Crider, Skinner and Reed.
7. Music— - - - - - - - - Orchestra.
8. Exhibition foot and sword drill.
9. Music,—"Draper Hall March," Orchestra.
10. Closing of Castle. Closing Ode.

The orchestra of the Castle, combined with the Zentmyer orchestra to fill the hall with music, Miss Minta K. Zentmyer presiding at the organ. The Castle was opened in compliance with the rules of the heroes of Chivalry and the interspersion of music by the orchestra told of the sad memorials of perished loves, and the valiant deeds of honor and glory won during that black night of war in which chivalry attained its full proportions. The courteous address of welcome by Sir Knight Rev. Harry Nelson Bassler was received with as much favor as was the address of "Ian McLauren's Minister of the Kirk," in the "Highland parish of Dumrochty"—while District Grand Chief Finafrock, wearing Chapeau and baldric, looked knightly as "Lachran Campbell," beside the rosy noble chiettain, Doctor Frank S. Skinner, the doctor "McLure, fresh from the "Bonnie Brier Bush." The quartet entitled "The girl that sat down on my hat," by Sir Knights Maxheimer, Crider, Skinner and Reed, brought forth applause among the guests and ladies who thronged the hall, after which—

"Proud marched the brave and gallants,
With banner furled and bugle shrill,
At Reed's Command, the armored knights
Stood ready for the drill,"

which was executed with prepared preciseness in accordance with the rules of the latest manual of sword tactics, under Past Chief H. R. Reed.

Altogether it was a most enjoyable occasion, in keeping with the military spirit of St. Thomas in its history of the past, and shows what a progressive organization can accomplish if actuated by the correct principles which should belong to the brotherhood of men.

QUINCY.

Sunday night, January 12, Rev. John Walk, near Mt. Zion, took a relapse and is now confined to his bed with pleurisy in his left side.

Thursday two very large porkers were slaughtered by J. A. and John P. Harbaugh near Blue Rock. They weighed, dressed, 1000 pounds. D. B. Stoops and John P. Burns were head butchers. The Messrs. Harbaugh are good young farmers and know how to raise large porkers.

Mrs. Rebecca, wife of Daniel McCleary, near Pigeon Hill, has been confined to her home for several weeks with, it is supposed, the grippe.

Levi W. Thompson, Kent, Illinois, who has been visiting friends and relatives for some time past left for his home Thursday, much pleased with his visit. He took with him George Miley, a little son of Christ. Miley, who will make his home in the west. We wish them a safe journey.

The teacher and patrons of Cold Spring district in our adjoining township of Hamiltonban, Adams county, have purchased a large, fine bell for their schoolhouse, and its clear tones can be heard through the valley, every school day, summoning the pupils to their duties. The patrons of the school greatly appreciate the labors of the teacher, Robert McCleaf, who is now employed for the fourth term.

Charles R. Thompson, near Small's mill, Tuesday week slaughtered two porkers that weighed, dressed, 497 and 310 pounds. Two large sausages were stuffed. One measured 72 feet and the other 63 feet. The casings were prepared by Mrs. Jennie Sites and Mrs. Maggie Harshman. Daniel P. Fortna was head butcher. Charley is slaughtering fine porkers this winter and from his actions the day is not far distant when he will do like ye men of olden times: take unto himself another wife. Monday week Abraham Harshman, of the same place, slaughtered a hog that weighed, dressed, 393 lbs.

Opinions of the Press.

Following are a few press notices on Mr. Watterson and his great lecture:

There was not a dull word spoken, and the audience came away feeling that they had for the first time personally met Abraham Lincoln.—Chicago News.

Mr. Watterson's gifts as an orator are universally conceded. But in this masterpiece he subordinates himself and his oratory to a great picture of the great war President. The result is an extraordinary series of impressions, the chief being one of absorbing interest.—Chicago Times.

Never was an audience more delighted and at the same time better instructed. Mr. Watterson's Lincoln is all flesh and blood. He pictures his hero as he was. There is nothing old or trite. You come away feeling that you knew nothing about Abraham Lincoln, but that now, for the first time, you know it all.—Chicago Herald.

Henry Watterson's brilliant, beautiful and affecting oration upon Abraham Lincoln is a contribution to literature no less than to oratory. No picture of the great martyr has been so vividly drawn, no picture has been so picturesquely colored as this one, drawn and colored by a Southerner who once was a rebel in heart and in act. It is an imperishable wreath on Lincoln's imperishable tomb in the hearts of his countrymen. * * But it not only illuminates Abraham Lincoln's character. It also throws a light upon the present feeling of the South, of which Mr. Watterson is the foremost representative.—Chicago Evening Journal.

GENERAL NEWS NOTES

Clipped and Condensed From Our Exchanges.

There was sale of the personal property of the late Mrs. Israel Keim, at Shanesville, Berks county, the other day, says the Philadelphia Times, when an ancient tea pot, with a small box inside, was knocked down to an indifferent bidder for fifteen cents. It proved to be a fortunate investment. A small package inside the small box, instead of being tea as the auctioneer incidentally observed, contained $40 in notes of the first greenback period, and a $5 gold piece.

In the National House of Representatives Friday the cause of Cuban independence was the subject of Chaplain Conden's prayer, and his invocation that the Government would do what it could to aid in securing liberty to the Cubans was followed by applause. The General Pension Appropriation bill for the year ending June 30, 1897, was passed without material amendment. It was announced that its passage antedated by 50 days the passage of a similar bill in either of the last two Congresses. A message was received from President Cleveland asking prompt legislation to enable the Attorney General to prosecute litigation in reference to the granting of patents to lands lying within forfeited railroad grants.

Commander-in-Chief Walker and members of the Legislative committee of the Grand Army of the Republic Friday appeared before House Committee on Invalid Pensions and urged the passage of some measure which would simplify the mode of procedure in pension cases before the department, and do away with technicalities which killed so many claims.

Ex-President Harrison authorizes the announcement that he and Mrs. Dimmick are engaged to be married. The marriage will not take place until after Lent.

LEGAL NOTICES.

LIQUOR LICENSES.—To all whom it may concern: Take notice, that in pursuance of the provisions of the laws of this Commonwealth, I hereby publish the names of all applicants for licenses to sell vinous, spirituous, malt and brewed liquors by retail, wholesale as distillers, bottlers or brewers, with their respective residences and the places for which application is made, who have filed their petitions in my office, to be presented to the Court of Quarter Sessions on the First Monday (3rd day) of February, A. D., 1896.

ESTABLISHED 1836.

PUBLIC LEDGER,

PHILADELPHIA.

GEORGE W. CHILDS, Editor and Proprietor from 1864 to 1894.

GEORGE W. CHILDS DREXEL EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

Special Offer to Ledger Readers.

The PUBLIC LEDGER has had prepared a large Post Office, County, Township, and Railway Map of Pennsylvania complete to date. This map is given free to subscribers for two months to the Daily Edition or one year to the Saturday (weekly) Edition of the LEDGER.

The map, which has on its reverse side a complete map of the United States, has been adopted by numerous school districts in the State, and is the best and latest map issued. It is worth much more than the price of subscription but is given away freely to subscribers to introduce the paper to their notice in the firm belief that those who become acquainted with the merits of the New LEDGER will not be willing to give it up.

During 1896 the PUBLIC LEDGER'S former high place in journalism will be not only maintained, but advanced by improvements in every department, in the extension of its news service, literary attractions, and special features. To enable the publisher to make the proposed improvements, and to meet the steadily and rapidly growing circulation of the LEDGER, Messrs. Hoe & Co. have constructed for it and are now erecting four new Sextuple Presses of the latest and most approved design. These presses will increase the facilities for rapid printing 25 per cent., enhance the typographical appearance of the paper, and give more distinct impressions.

The LEDGER is first of all a newspaper giving all the news of the day, classified and in complete form. In the PUBLIC LEDGER every statement is verified, its news is therefore thoroughly reliable.

Outside of its news department (which includes special correspondence from all the important cities and towns in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware) the LEDGER is an illustrated family newspaper of exceptional interest and value, giving special attention to domestic affairs, religious news and comment, social events, games, sports, the fashions of the day, literary, art, farm and garden, scientific and labor notes, building society notes, etc.

To its Special New York and Washington correspondence, long since rendered famous, it now adds letters from the chief Capitols of Europe.

Its financial news and market reports are complete and reliable.

The Saturday issue is a great compendium of every phrase of social life, containing reading matter to suit every taste, compiled specially for the Saturday Edition of the LEDGER. Its treatise on the International Sunday School lesson is alone worth the price of subscription.

Its classified advertisements are as interesting as news and as widely read. The public has for years made the PUBLIC LEDGER its chief vehicle for the announcements of births, marriages, and deaths.

Agents wanted; liberal commissions paid. Address Circulation Department the LEDGER for terms.

A WORD IN PASSING.

Town and County Briefs With a Bit of Comment—Happenings of the Week and a Forecast of Coming Events.

Charles E. Ritter and Miss Viola Eckenrode, both of Chambersburg, were married in Hagerstown, Md., January 15, by Rev. E. H. Delk.

On Saturday, George Smith, who drives A. S. Stover & Son's wagons, was thrown from a lumber wagon and painfully hurt. He still suffers severely.

F. H. Shumaker, teller of the National Bank of Chambersburg, has been suffering from an attack of pleurisy. His many friends will be glad to know that he is recovering.

The Mercersburg Journal advises people who burn wood for fuel, to have their chimneys burned out before the spring storms come around. This is good advice.

The Industrial S. O. commission visited the Scotland school Tuesday; all the members were present except Governor Hastings whose health is not as robust as it might be.

A roving tinker of umbrellas and tinware was in town Friday. His outfit was loaded on a small wagon which was drawn by a stout dog aided by the master who pushed behind.

Nelson E. Latsbaugh of Newburg, and Miss Media J. Stewart of Amberson's Valley, were married by Rev. A. N. Horn, at the residence of Mrs. H. A. Staver in Newburg on the 8th of January.

John Garns, of near Upton, recently slaughtered five hogs which dressed about 2100 pounds. Mr. Garns evidently knows how to select his hogs for fattening and then he knows how to feed them.

Miss Julia D. Mifflin was married on Thursday evening at the home of her mother, Mrs. Julia Mifflin, in Shippensburg, to Dr. W. E. Shapley. A number of friends from other points were present to witness the ceremony.

A committeeman of the 4th Guilford district, on Friday sent us a notice of the Democratic primary meeting to be held at Marion school building January 22. We are willing to publish these notices but they should reach us in time.

The cannon on Memorial Square are to be mounted on new carriages. This and a number of other improvements should be made by way of getting our town into new dress for encampment week which though some distance off yet, is rapidly approaching.

No one entering the army of Benedicts, among Chambersburg gentlemen, has been more warmly nor heartily congratulated than will be James Sweney, Esq. The announcement of his marriage to Miss Annie McDannell, of Shippensburg appears elsewhere.

A youthful contributor sends us several stanzas of poetry based on bird hunting with a gun. The writing is creditable to our young friend, but we think he can do better if he tries. We will withhold the lines for a time, and he will probably improve upon them.

The directors of the Valley National Bank have elected the following officers to serve during the current year: President, Geo. H. Stewart; vice president, M. C. Kennedy; cashier, John R. Orr; teller, Fred. B. Reed; bookkeeper, P. O. Hawbecker; assistant, J. L. Kirby; messenger, D. M. Funk.

The S. O. Industrial School Commission held its regular meeting at the Scotland school Tuesday. All the members of the commission were present except Governor Hastings. A number of men and several teams were at work hauling dirt to the approaches of the new bridge across the creek at Scotland.

I. L. Lesher who lives not far from South Penn Junction, was hauling manure some days ago. After unloading his wagon his horses ran away and he was thrown under one of the horses which fell and injured him quite severely. His condition was regarded as critical for a while but he is now recovering.

One day last week while Daniel Stouffer who lives near the Warm Spring road not far from Housum, was running his wagon backward out of the barn floor, the pole or tongue struck him in the side and fractured several of his ribs. His injuries are healing, however, and it is hoped he will soon be as well as ever.

The gospel union meetings that are being held in the different churches in Chambersburg are of unusual interest. There are large audiences every night and the ladies' afternoon meetings are also largely attended. It has not yet been determined whether the meetings will close with the end of the present week or not.

There was much interest over the license cases presented before the Fulton county court last week. Remonstrances were presented against both applicants in McConnellsburg and the one in Fort Littleton. All were granted except the last. Most of the McConnellsburg attorneys were on the side of the remonstrants.

The Greencastle Echo-Pilot says: Capt. W. Lee Rhodes was unfortunate last week while in Chambersburg, receiving a painful injury to one of his feet. While standing at the Cumberland Valley station the express cart was accidentally pushed over his foot, with the result as above stated. You will know him by his limp.

General John B. Gordon, of Georgia, will lecture before the G. A. R. Post at Carlisle Saturday evening next, January 25. Tickets will be sold from this place for the round trip for $1.00 over the C. V. R. R. General Gordon is one of the most entertaining and persuasive lecturers in the south. All who hear him will enjoy a rich oratorical treat.

Buy your tickets at Miller's pharmacy for Henry Watterson's lecture on "Abraham Lincoln" February 4, in Rosedale opera house. It will be one of the finest oratorical and literary treats that our people have ever had the opportunity to hear. The proceeds of the lecture will be applied to paying the expenses of the coming G. A. R. encampment.

Miss May Holby was married Thursday evening at the home of her mother, Mrs. Lizzie Holby, East Catherine street, to J. M. Horn, of York, Pa. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a number of invited friends, by Rev. Runyan, of Fort Loudon charge, M. E. church. The young couple took the night train for Harrisburg. Friday they went to York where Mr. Horn has prepared a comfortable home for his bride whose many friends in the county wish her and her husband a happy journey through life.

Cards of invitation have been issued by Dr. J. Max Flickinger and wife, of near Fannettsburg, to the marriage of the Doctor's sister Miss Edith Flickinger and Dr. Clarence Chritzman, of Welsh Run. The ceremony will take place in the Presbyterian church in Fannettsburg Wednesday, January 29. Within a month or two Dr. Chritzman will take up his residence in Greencastle where he will engage in the practice of medicine.

The camp-fire committee of Housum Post G. A. R. are arranging for a camp-fire on Friday evening, February 21. It is expected that an enjoyable time will be had. It is usual to hold such meetings on the night of February 22, but as that holiday this year comes on Saturday the date has been fixed one evening earlier. The committee is composed of B. F. Johns, Jno. A. Seiders and Geo. A. Minnich. Its composition is a guarantee that the occasion will be enjoyable.

The barn and its contents belonging to F. A. Cochran, at Welltown, six miles north of Winchester, were destroyed by fire at 2 o'clock Sunday morning. The barn contained thirteen head of horses, about 500 bushels of wheat, thirty tons of hay and farming implements, the latter very nearly new. His celebrated stallion Rattler was also burned. Mr. Cochran lost his barn by fire about five years ago. Both fires are thought to have been the work of an incendiary. His loss Sunday is about $6000, with $3000 insurance.

A number of the workmen about the Scotland school grounds and buildings are positive in their assertions that the sewage from the school builings, goes into the creek. "And," says one of the laborers who works about the school, but lives in Chambersburg, "we Chambersburg people must drink the stuff that is drawn off from the school." Whether the workman's statement is true we don't know, but there should be a thorough investigation by our health board and if there is anything wrong it should be corrected at once.

Miss Clara Barton and her assistants in the Red Cross society, sailed for Armenia Wednesday to administer relief to the suffering Christians in that land. She is taking a great risk, we believe, and we would not be surprised to hear of the noble philanthropist being murdered while in the performance of her self-sacrificing labor. Then what? May Heaven forbid that the cruel, heartless Turks should carry their animosity to the Christians so far, as her death would be avenged though the heavens should fall. Miss Barton has undertaken a duty before which many men would quail.

It should not be forgotten that Henry Watterson, of the Louisville Courier Journal, will lecture in Rosedale Tuesday evening, February 4. It is not necessary to publish any testimonials to acquaint the people with the fact that he is one of the finest of American platform speakers. His subject is "Abraham Lincoln." Tickets will be on sale at Miller's Pharmacy on Monday next. The proceeds of the lecture will be used to help defray the expenses of the G. A. R. Encampment to be held here in June next. There is scarcely a doubt that the opera house will be crowded, it certainly should be.

Rev. F. L. Nicodemus, widely known in Pennsylvania as a minister of the Church of God, died in the Jefferson Hospital, Philadelphia, early Monday morning of injuries received on Saturday, when, while riding a bicycle, he was run down by a heavy wagon at Twelfth and Walnut streets, Philadelphia. He was 55 years of age and was well known in Franklin, Huntingdon and Blair counties among the people of his own denomination For years he was transcribing clerk of the Eldership meeting of Pennsylvania, and acted in a similar capacity at the General Eldership Conferenence, in Findlay, Ohio, and North Bend, Iowa. In 1882 he was Speaker of the Eastern Pennsylvania Eldership meeting.

The Waynesboro Gazette of last week has the following in reference to a most estimable gentleman of that place who is widely known and greatly respected by all who know him. "Rev. Benjamin Price, of Church street, Waynesboro, was stricken with paralysis Wednesday morning while going about his usual duties at his stable. He was noticed going to the stable and upon failing to return, after a reasonable length of time, search was made for him and he was found unconscious. Medical aid was instantly summoned, and Mr. Price removed to the house where he remains in a semi-conscious condition. While it is impossible at this time to predict the result, it is hoped by his many friends that he may fully recover.

The Franklin county Medical Society held its quarterly meeting Tuesday. Dr. J. J. Coffman took his seat as president of the society. Drs. John Montgomery, Coffman, Devilbiss, Maclay and Ramsey were chosen to represent the society at the American Medical Society's meeting in Atlanta. Ten delegates were elected as representatives to the state convention. Dr. Bishop, of Carlisle, read a paper on "Forces that dominate the medical profession." Arrangements have been made to procure enlarged photographs of the eminent physicians of the county, now deceased, to have them hung on the walls of the society's library room. The delegates to the meeting of the state medical society from Franklin county are: Dr. H. G. Chritzman, Welsh Run; Dr. P. McCauley Cook, Fulton county; Dr. L. M. Kauffman, Kauffman's; Dr. A. B. Grove, New Franklin; Dr. E. G. Jones, Dry Run; Dr. C. N. Hartzell, Fayetteville; Dr. J. M. Ripple, Waynesboro; Dr. R. B. Varden, Mercersburg; Dr. W. H. Brosius, Mont Alto; Dr. C. B. West, Upper Strasburg.

A Will Contested.

The will of Mrs. Polly Felty, who recently died near Upper Strasburg, has been offered for probate. A caveat has been filed against the probate by Hon. W. Rush Gillan and J. M. McDowell, Esq., attorneys for those contesting the will. Hon. D. W. Rowe and F. Mehaffey, Esq., are for the executors. The estate is valued at from $12,000 to $15,000. There are no direct heirs.

Busy Times For Borough Council.

There is considerable activity just now in our borough council. A new street to be called Commerce street is to be opened from North Main street at Trinity Lutheran church and extend westward to the borough limits. The street is to be 60 feet wide. There is also a dispute which will likely result in litigation with Aug. Wolf & Co., in regard to using of the borough supply of water without compensating for the same. It is difficult to get at the merits of the case as each side presents its statements quite strongly.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

Items of Interest About Your and Our Friends and Those Whom We All Know.

J. Frisby Brake, who resides with his mother in St. Thomas, has been quite ill with pneumonia.

J. E. Maxheimer, of St. Thomas has been quite unwell for some days. He had grown somewhat better but yesterday was not so well again.

W. A. Hollinberger, one of Hoke and Appenzellar's most efficient salesmen, is again confined to his home by illness. "Gust" has much sympathy among his many friends.

Among the appreciative callers at the REVIEW office Saturday, was Mrs. Jacob S. Bender of Hamilton township, who has been reading the new paper and was much pleased with its newsy paragraphs.

Oscar H. Little and his sister, Miss Stella, of Concord, have been visiting friends at Mercersburg and at the Shippensburg Normal. Mr. Little took time to pay the REVIEW office a brief but pleasant call on Monday.

J. W. Croft, son of George W. Croft, St. Thomas, is one of the bright medical students at Jefferson this year. This is Mr. Croft's first year at the college and when he leaves at the end of his four years, he will be one of the best equipped young physicians in the state.

Grant Jones of Metal, expects to start west in a few days to visit relatives in Nebraska. If he likes the country he thinks he will locate in that state. Mr. Jones will probably find that Path Valley has some desirable features that are not found in the state to which he thinks of going.

Hon. A. Nevin Pomeroy and Mrs. Pomeroy have gone on a trip south. Mr. Pomeroy is a delegate to the national editorial association which meets in St. Augustine, Florida, Jan. 20 to 24. Mr. and Mrs. Pomeroy will visit other sections and cities in the south; they will be gone some days.

Franklin Zettle, a former resident of Orrstown, but now a property holder in Anderson county, Kansas, is visiting his brother, Henry Zettle, at State Line. He also spent some time in Philadelphia with the family of his brother-in-law Godfrey Greenawalt who is a native of Chambersburg. Mr. Zettle was a pleasant caller at the REVIEW office Monday.

David Hoke and wife of Altoona, have been visiting their daughter, Mrs. Theo. Wood and other friends in town for some days. Mr. Hoke is the brother of Mr. Elias Hoke and the father of Reamer Hoke, the present postmaster of Altoona, appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Postmaster McDonald. The amount of mail matter and cash handled by the office is remarkable. Mr. Hoke has been in the office for more than ten years and has become one of the indispensables in its administration.

Eleventh Penna. Cavalry Reunion.

Already the survivors of this regiment are arranging for a reunion to be held here at the time of the coming encampment. As there are probably more survivors of this regiment in this county than in any other outside of Philadelphia, it is fitting that the reunion should be held here. It was to have been held in September last, but the fact of the coming department encampment being held here in June next induced the officers of the regimental association to change the time till next June. A number of members of the old regiment are already looking forward with pleasure to the meeting with their old comrades.

Enjoyment At the Soldiers' Orphans' Industrial School.

General Charles L. Young and Mrs. Young celebrated the 25th anniversary of their wedding at the Scotland Industrial school Saturday. The occasion was a most pleasant one. The instructors of the different departments, the teachers and the pupils gave General and Mrs. Young a most pleasant surprise. They received a number of handsome and valuable presents. A very pleasant social time was also enjoyed. There was vocal music by the school, instrumental music on the piano and organ, and then the band of more than thirty pieces gave the party an outside serenade. The occasion was the most pleasant one the school has enjoyed up to this time.

Ex-Judge Herman Dead.

Hon. M. C. Herman, Ex-Judge of the Cumberland county courts, died at his home in Carlisle on Sunday. He had not quite reached the 55th year of his age. Last winter he was stricken with paralysis while professionally engaged in the court house. He was taken home and soon recovered, apparently, and since then has been attending to his professional labors until a few days since when he took cold which resulted in pneumonia and caused his death. He served ten years as Judge of Cumberland county and was regarded as one of the able jurists of the valley. He is survived by his widow, two sons and two daughters.

Judge Herman had a wide circle of friends among whom his death will be sorely regretted, to say nothing of the loss to his family in their bereavement.

Base Ball For Next Season in the Valley.

On the principle of preparing for war in time of peace the base ball enthusiasts of the Cumberland Valley have almost perfected the organization of the valley league which is to include in its membership the clubs of Martinsburg, West Va., Frederick and Hagerstown, Md., and Hanover, York, Carlisle and Chambersburg, Penna. The Chambersburg correspondent of the Philadelphia Times says: "Chambersburg will again be represented by a team of college players, and the "Maroons" will make a terrific try for that pennant which so narrowly escaped their grasp last season. The club is now a chartered organization, is on a good business footing and has $2,000 worth of stock subscribed. The directors have decided to hold a fair, commencing on February 15, and will introduce some novel features that will make it a money-maker. The club has now two agents out to secure players. Three men have signed. Schoenhut of the University of Pennsylvania, will again pitch for Chambersburg, and his catcher will be Cremer, the crack catcher of the Franklin and Marshall College team. Criswell, the finest third baseman Lafayette has even had, will hold down the bag at the left corner. Others who are expected to sign are Goeckel, Avil, King Dickson and Harvey Smith of the University of Pennsylvania, and Barclay of Lafayette. Several others will be signed from college teams, and Manager Mack of Pittsburg, will sign for Chambersburg a pitcher and an infielder. The first meeting of the league will be held here on the 23d instant, and then the ball will be set rolling in earnest."

SOME FRIENDS WHO LATELY CALLED.

Their Words of Encouragement and Other Matters Talked About.

One of the dozen or more friends who came in on Friday and chatted a little while was Col. Dixon of St. Thomas. The warlike interest which the Colonel inherited from several generations of ancestors among whom was his paternal grandfather who had what would be now regarded as almost a hair-raising experience in escaping from a blockhouse near Knobsville, Fulton county, when it was surrounded by Indians, before Lieutenant Littleton of the British army built the fort at what is now the peaceful village of Fort Littleton—this warlike interest, we say is still alive in Col. Dixon, though the exciting times in which he commanded the Sixth Reserves have passed away, we hope never to be repeated. When confidence was expressed by the REVIEW man, that England could not dislodge a brick in any of our seaboard cities, the Colonel expressed a different opinion. With their search-lights, he said, and all the appliances for discovering the locality of torpedoes, these explosives would be entirely harmless and the big ships could float up to our very piers.

Elias Patton, Fort Loudon, was another caller who had noted that in many years he had not seen the roads smoother or dryer at this season of the year. Though there have been a few cases of serious illness at Fort Loudon recently, the general health of the community is good. Rev. J. Hassler, D. D., whose health has not been as good as it might be is much improved. Mr. Patton likes the REVIEW and advanced his subscription a year ahead.

Tobias Glazier and Samuel Mellott of Webster Mills, Fulton county, two pushing farmers in the "Cove," spent Friday in Chambersburg on business. They will try the REVIEW and see how they like it.

Samuel Monath, one of the most reliable building contractors in the valley, was in to say a kind word for the REVIEW on Friday and advanced his subscription a year. He says the outlook for much building the coming season is not very promising. He hopes it may improve. Mr. Monath has no desire for political honors or participation in political contests. He has no genius, he thinks, for the ways of practical politicians.

On Saturday that stalwart veteran, Henry McElroy, of near Rocky Spring, was in to manifest his appreciation of the REVIEW. He threw down his free silver dollar and would hardly wait for a receipt as he was in a hurry. He hadn't any news to tell but looks forward to a good time when the encampment meets in June, when he expects to shake hands with some of the boys he hasn't seen for thirty years.

John F. Peiffer of Chambersburg, who is of a cheery spirit, notwithstanding the light of day is constantly shut out, thinks the REVIEW is all right, as his good wife reads it to him. He, too, is waiting expectantly to "see" some of the boys in June, with whom he rode from '61 to '65. He has a place for several of them at his table when the time comes. He was a Saturday caller. His dollar was a greenback.

J. D. Findley of Decorum, over in Huntingdon county, was piloted in on Saturday by ex-Sheriff Jones who more than squared up the REVIEW account of Samuel R. Jones of Metal. Mr. Findley is a hustling farmer and dealer in stock. He knows everybody within a radius of a good many miles from the southeast corner of Huntingdon county, and is equally widely known as a wide-awake, honorable business man. He lives "at home" on an excellent farm and his latch string is always out when friends or the friendless swing open his gates. As his subscription had had been paid months ago he had no special business with the REVIEW except to leave the names of half-a-dozen probable subscribers and a promise to call again.

David Clippinger and his son, David, junior, who constitute a rattling blacksmithing firm at Fannettsburg, were in on Saturday. The senior David is not so supple of joint as when he could mount a horse without the help of stirrups in the stirring campaigns of 1864-65 when Hooker could have found more than a few dead cavalrymen. From riding horses he took to shoeing them after the war was over, and now, owing to the "unbending" condition of his spinal column he has relinquished that portion of his work while he is looking after the grubs and other destructive insects that pester his peach orchard on the mountain side west of town. His subscription to the REVIEW had also been previously settled so we got no chance at his pocketbook.

Archibald Hay of St. Thomas township, one of the courtliest gentlemen of the old school whom one could desire to meet, was among Saturday's callers. He thinks the price and makeup of the REVIEW will make it popular, and he backed his opinion and good wishes with one of Bland's dollars which puts the account in his favor.

E. H. Miller of near New Franklin, looked in in a semi-social way. He will not spend so much time in the fields in the coming summer as he has been doing. Recent changes in his family arrangements have inclined him to make changes in his occupation.

J. D. Reasner and Charles Spoonour were in looking around in a business way. Mr. Spoonour will shortly make sale of farming implements, stock, etc., and Mr. Reasner will dispose of the surplus product of his saw mill.

Joseph Sackman of St. Thomas, to whom sixteen children have been born, has not forgotten the days at Bermuda Hundred in 1864, when the pickets of the opposing armies confronted each other only a few feet apart, and the excavations from the Dutch Gap canal made the waters of the James river yellow with mud, while the occasional "zip" of a bullet or the bursting of a shell made the stay in that locality as disagreeable as it was exciting. During his stay in the office on Saturday there was a transfer of a "dollar of the daddies" which gave us a profoundly respectful regard for Comrade Sackman's business methods.

Other names might be mentioned of friends who have been equally kind, but we have not the space for all.

Notice.

Those persons who are willing to accommodate delegates to the G. A. R. encampment in June next are requested to make known to any of the following named persons how many they will entertain, whether by boarding or lodging or both and whether they prefer men or women or whether they can accommodate both. They should also state their charges:

E. L. Wesley, Montgomery House; J. F. Vanderau, Union House; Chas. Levan, F. W. Day, John Eckels, South Main; B. F. Johns, South Second; Geo. A. Minnich, King; H. H. Woodal, West Market.

THE TAYLOR WORKS TO BE SOLD.

Sheriff Greenawalt Will Sell the Big Manufacturing Establishment.

The following named proceedings indicate that the Taylor Works, which have been a kind of "Jonah," on Chambersburg's capital and industrial enterprise are to be finally disposed of. The fact that Sheriff Greenawalt has made a levy upon the property, is evidence that some disposition is to be made of the property, so that it will be effectually closed or an opportunity given to some people of energy and capital to start the works again on a basis that will pay.

On Monday afternoon C. B. Dyson, treasurer of the works, confessed judgment against the company for over $6,000 by authority of the Board of Directors, in favor of J. W. Sharpe, trustee for a number of creditors. The National Bank of Chambersburg is creditor to the amount of $5,880.09; W. E. Tolbert, $220; A. H. Hoover, $226; W. C. Latshaw as administrator of J. L. Latshaw, $97; for himself, $36; J. M. McDowell, Esq., $8. These judgments were confessed Monday afternoon and execution was entered the same evening and Sheriff Greenawalt made levy the same evening upon both the real estate and the personal property. The date of sale of personal property has been fixed for January 30 at 1 p. m.

The real estate will be sold subject to mortgages aggregating $87,900 in favor of Alexander Stewart, jr., trustee for the holders of first mortgage bonds. J. M. McDowell, Esq., has become the trustee as the successor of Mr. Stewart.

There have been many inquiries as to the desirableness of the plant, its location, capacity, etc., by parties who are interested in the promotion of this class of industries, and it is hoped that the works will not remain long idle but will soon be opened up with a vigor they have not yet known.

The present directors of the Taylor Engine Company are Samuel M. Linn, John L. Grier, C. Burkhart, Samuel Monath, W. C. Latshaw, W. E. Tolbert and Jacob Rohrer.

It is to be hoped that the sale will be made and that the property can be put upon a paying basis, as it assuredly can be with a sufficient capital and under a proper business management.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

Those Who Have Passed to the Great Beyond—The Death Record In Franklin County and Elsewhere.

Mrs. Sarah J. Deihl, wife of F. A. Deihl, died at her home in Scotland on Saturday night after a long illness. Besides her husband she leaves a daughter whose husband is Rev. E. Ludwig of the U. B. church at Steelton. Mrs. Diehl is survived also by two brothers and two sisters, George W. Coldsmith of Scotland, and Oliver of Greencastle; Mrs. John Hughes of Gettysburg, and Mrs. George Dice whose home is in the west.

***

Catharine, wife of Peter George, died at her home near New Franklin, Sunday morning, aged 74 years. She was buried yesterday at Grindstone Hill graveyard.

***

Mrs. Jacob Zern, a most estimable woman, died at her home in Orrstown on Monday. Her funeral, conducted by her pastor, Rev. F. T. Snyder, took place today. Interment in Shippensburg cemetery.

***

George Arris died at his home in Hagerstown on Tuesday in the 80th year of his age. He formerly lived in Chambersburg but was a native of Germany. His sons John, George and William live in Chambersburg and Daniel resides in the west. Mrs. Sarah Kuhl, of near Chambersburg, is a daughter. Mr. Arris's widow also survives. The funeral takes place this afternoon in Hagerstown.

A Fatal Squeeze.

On Wednesday of last week Jacob C. Wagner, who lives about two miles south of Orrstown, and is a brother-in-law of Auctioneer William Bender, was badly injured by his two-horse team running away. Mr. Wagner was hauling lime from the kiln of Samuel Wadle at Southampton station to his farm. When about to go down a long steep hill he went to draw the brakes, but something frightened the horses and they started down the hill at a furious pace before he could apply the brakes. The road is narrow and the team drew the wagon close to the fence and Mr. Wagner was caught between the fence and the wheels. He was badly bruised and squeezed between the wagon and the fence and was injured internally. The team ran on home and finally stopped without doing any damage to horses or wagon. Mr. Wagner made his way home as best he could and has been under the care of a physician since.

Mr. Wagner died of his injuries at his home near Orrstown on Tuesday. He was in the 49th year of his age, and is survived by his widow and one daughter.

The funeral will take place Friday, interment in Cedar Grove cemetery. Mr. Wagner was a useful and estimable citizen and will be greatly missed in the community of which he was a valuable member.

Resolutions on the Death of John W. Mason.

At a regular meeting of Robert F. Elliott Post, G. A. R., of Spring Run, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted in memoriam of Comrade John W. Mason:

WHEREAS, It has pleased an allwise Providence to remove by death our esteemed and worthy comrade, John W. Mason, from membership in the G. A. R.,

Resolved, That while we mourn the loss of our comrade by death, yet we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

Resolved, That in the death of Comrade Mason our Post has lost a true and faithful comrade, the community in which he lived an honored citizen and his family a devoted husband and father.

Resolved, That the Post tender the sorrow-stricken wife, daughter and son of our late comrade, its heartfelt sympathies and condolence.

Resolved, That these resolutions be entered upon the Post record, a copy presented to the family of the deceased, and that they be published in two of the county papers.

Resolved, That as a token of our esteem the Post room be draped in mourning for a period of sixty days.

CHURCH AND SUNDAY SCHOOL.

The Lesson For Sunday, January 26.

International Bible lesson for Sunday, January 26, 1896, from Luke 4: 14-22. Title: The Early Ministry of Jesus. Golden text: "His word was with power." Among the intervening events between this lesson and the last are the following:

The temptation (Matthew, Mark and Luke), then the events narrated in John 1: 18 to 4:54. The answer of the Baptist to those sent from Jerusalem; he points out Jesus as the Lamb of God; the first followers of Jesus; the marriage of Cana; a brief stay at Capernaum; the first passover, with the first cleansing of the temple; the interview with Nicodemus; the further witness of John the Baptist; the ministry in Judea; the departure into Galilee through Samaria; the interview with the Samaritan woman, and the brief stay at Sychar; the healing of the nobleman's son at Capernaum (our Lord being at Cana). For a time our Lord seems to have remained in privacy before beginning his public ministry in Galilee. The return to Galilee, mentioned in verse 14, was probably that through Samaria (John 4), though Andrews thinks it was another journey after the feast (probably the second passover) mentioned in John 5.

The place was Galilee which included in its territory the town of Nazareth where the childhood and early manhood of Jesus were spent and Capernaum in which many of the mighty works of his ministry were done. The time was early in the year A. D. 28 or in the latter part of the year A. D. 27.

On "The Early Ministry of Jesus" Dr. A. F. Schauffler in the Sunday School Times gives the following "Teaching Hints:"

Early in His Galilean ministry our Lord came to the city of Nazareth, where He had been brought up. His fame had already reached that place, and all were on edge to see and hear Him. In the synagogue, on the Sabbath, they gave Him the roll, to read the lesson for the day, and He then went on to explain what He had read. Presently something that He said angered them, and they rushed Him out of the synagogue and of the town, and would have thrown Him over a precipice if He had not escaped from them and gone His way. He left Nazareth, and made Capernaum His headquarters while He was in Galilee.

These blind Nazarenes were acting against their best interests. The hands of the Master were full of blessings, but because of their unbelief they had to go without any. They probably congratulated themselves on their cleverness in ejecting this man from their midst, while they were to be pitied for their blindness and hardness of heart. What might not have come to that town of good, had they welcomed Him to their midst, it is hard to say; but, as it was, nothing came but desertion and spiritual destitution. We condemn them, rightly, for their conduct, but their deeds have been repeated over and over again since that day. Even now there are many who reject Him and His teaching, and think that in so doing they are showing their smartness.

What was it that Jesus came to give to men? Verses 18 and 19 speak of blessings for body, mind, and soul, which this world needs in the deepest sense. The errand of the Master is the same today as when He spoke these words. All who accept Him may have the blessings these verses speak of. And just so far as His spirit has taken possession of any city, these things are realized. I have sometimes thought what a privilege it would be to take Paul (supposing that he were allowed to visit New York) around the town, and show him the sights. That which would interest him would not be the Brooklyn bridge, nor the elevated railroad, but institutions which are aiming at elevating humanity. We could take him to a hospital and say: "See here, Paul; this hospital is only for little children that are crippled and ruptured. Here their bodies are cared for, their minds educated, and their spiritual welfare looked after." We could take him to a score of schools of which we could say: "These are for the poor children, whose parents are not able to give them food sufficient to keep them in good condition. Here they are taught, and here they get at least one good meal a day."

Then we could pass on to orphan asylums, and show him thousands of little orphans that are loved and ministered to by the hand of Christ's disciples till they are able to care for themselves. In another part of the city we could show him several places where they care for poor girls that have left the pathway of virtue, and where they are received, and, if possible, led to the feet of Him who is able and willing to save them. We could show him how we care for the aged, the sick, the dying and incurable, how we minister to the blind, to the lunatic, to the discharged prisoner, to the drunkard to children of weak intellect.

How long do you suppose that it, would take to go through New York with Paul, and give him just a glance at each of these institutions which which minister to the wants of humanity? If he could take in twenty-five each day, it would take him eighteen days of hard work to get through them all; and that would leave all the churches and Sunday schools untouched. Four hundred and fifty institutions for the relief of human wants, and five hundred and fifty churches, in this one city! And all these are the result of the partial acceptance of that which Jesus offered to the dwellers in Nazareth.

On the other hand, Paul would have seen much to sadden him. He would have seen seven thousand liquor saloons, many gambling-places, and worse houses, and other things that would have made him weep. These things are the result of the rejection of that fulness of blessing that Jesus offered to his fellow-townsmen. Yes, the world has still the spirit that animated it in the Master's time, and it rejoices in its rejection of the truth. One of the saddest things that God ever said about his people was that, though iniquity abounded, and the prophets prophesied falsely, still "my people love to have it so." This is the sting of sin, that it is what people want, and are angered if any one tries to persuade them to abandon it. If men hated sin, it would not take long for them to get rid of it and of its consequences. But they love it, and had rather sin and be punished than abandon it and reap the reward of righteousness.

What is true of society at large is also true of the individual. This same Jesus wants to come into our hearts, and there bring "the acceptable year of the Lord," and to see there all "the peaceable fruits of righteousness" growing in abundance. To this end he sends his Holy Spirit to knock at the doors of our hearts, that, entering in, he may produce such fruitage in our lives. We too often decline to admit him. We prefer our own selfish ways to his, and so keep him out. Was it suicidal in the men of Nazareth to refuse to hear him? And is it any less suicidal for us to say to him, "Go thy way for this time"? Lut us take heed lest, in condemning the men of Nazareth, we be not speaking our own condemnation as well.

Mr. Stone on Pensions.

The pension appropriation bill was taken up in committee of the whole in the House on Monday of last week. W. A. Stone, Republican, Pennsylvania, explained its provisions. It carried $141, 425,820, a reduction of $58,750 from the estimates. The amendments to existing laws attached to the bill provide that pensions granted under the act of 1890 should date from the first application, no matter how many times they had been rejected for defect or informality in the application, and repealed the provisions of the act of 1890, requiring a widow to prove that she was dependent for her support on her daily labor. Instead, by the terms of the amendment she must prove that her net income does not exceed $500 per year.

In answer to a question Mr. Stone said he did not know how many widows would receive pensions under the amendment, but it mattered not whether it would result in giving pensions to one or 100,000 widows. The government was not so poor that it could not affort to pension the widows of the defenders of the Nation.

Mr. Graff, Republican, Illinois, gave notice of an amendment making a pension a vested right, and attacked the present pension policy. Mr. Bartlett, Democrat, New York, opposed any further extension of the pension system. Without disposing of the bill, the committee rose and the House adjourned until Tuesday.

Mrs. Hattie V. Angelier, wife of Frank Angelier, a cigar dealer and pool room proprietor, shot and killed Charles H. Parker, agent for the Levitt Machine Company, of Athol, Massachusetts, in her husband's store in Baltimore on Sunday. She claimed that she shot Parker in defense of her honor, but the coroner on Monday not only committed Mrs. Angelier, but held her husband as an accessory.

At a prayer meeting at South Pasadena, Cal., Sunday night a week, Charles Crawford arose under deep excitement and stated he could not hold his secret any longer. He then announced that he was Albert Deffendorfer, son of a wealthy merchant of Huntingdon, Pa., and a fugitive from justice, under sentence for burglary and larceny in Pennsylvania. He went to Los Angeles the following Monday and gave himself up to the Sheriff.

THE NEW YORK TIMES.

The TIMES is a newspaper for intelligent men and women who want to read all the news of the world every day. The paper has distinguishing merits of its own. It is neither sensational nor dull. It is not sour-tempered. It is not frivolous or visionary. It sees plenty of good in the world and tells about it. It tells of the bad when it must, but not unwholesomely. It prints with fullness the record of human endeavor in many fields outside of business, politics and war—in literature, religion, science, art, sports and household matters. No paper in the country prints so many book reviews and so much book news. No paper has so complete a financial page—a daily manual for investors and officers of financial institutions. Its market reports—wool, cotton, breadstuffs, farm products, &c.—are the best in the country.

The Democracy of THE TIMES is of the old-fashioned sort—as old as Thomas Jefferson; majority rule, no bossism, no machine tyranny, the divorce of politics from private money-making, a sound currency, industrial emancipation, and every-day honesty. To promote the advance of the Democratic party along these lines it labors with heart and conscience and all its might.

THE NEW-YORK WEEKLY TIMES.

The subscription price of THE NEW-YORK WEEKLY TIMES is one dollar a year. THE WEEKLY TIMES is a capital newspaper. It contains all the current news condensed from the dispatches and reports of the daily edition, besides literary matter, discussions upon agricultural topics by practical farmers, full and accurate market reports of prices for farm produce, live stock, &c., and a carefully prepared weekly wool market.
